

The Lexicon

An Introduction

Elisabetta Ježek

OXFORD
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

Preface to the English edition viii

Typographic conventions xi

Abbreviations xiii

1. Basic notions 1

1.1. Lexicon and dictionary 1

1.2. Lexicon and semantics 5

1.2.1. Concepts and lexicalization 5

1.2.2. Lexicalization patterns 7

1.3. Lexical meaning and grammatical meaning 13

1.3.1. Content words and function words 14

1.3.2. Types of grammatical meanings 16

1.4. The notion word 21

1.4.1. Counting the words of a language 22

1.4.2. Word types 29

1.4.3. Word typology 35

Further reading 39

2. Lexical information 41

2.1. Types of lexical information 41

2.2. Lexical information and encyclopedic knowledge 50

Further reading 53

3. The meaning of words 54

3.1. What, exactly, do words mean? 54

3.2. Ambiguity and polysemy of words 56

3.3. Theories on the nature of meaning 62

3.4. Building meaning syntagmatically 75

3.5. Systems of word meaning representation 83

Further reading 97

4. The global structure of the lexicon 98

4.1. Word classes 98

4.2. Morphological, syntactic, and semantic classes 101

- 4.3. Relationships between word classes and meaning 102
- 4.4. Word subclasses 107
 - 4.4.1. Verb classes 107
 - 4.4.1.1. Transitivity and intransitivity 108
 - 4.4.1.2. Valency structure 111
 - 4.4.1.3. Aktionsart 121
 - 4.4.1.4. The root 127
 - 4.4.2. Noun classes 129
 - 4.4.2.1. Entity nouns 130
 - 4.4.2.2. Event nouns 136
- 4.5. Word class systems across languages 151
- Further reading 157
- 5. Paradigmatic structures in the lexicon 159
 - 5.1. What counts as a paradigmatic relation? 159
 - 5.2. Kinds of paradigmatic relations among words 163
 - 5.3. Relations of inclusion: hyperonymy/hyponymy; meronymy/holonymy 164
 - 5.4. Relations of identity: synonymy, near-synonymy 172
 - 5.5. Relations of opposition: antonymy, complementarity, converse terms 175
 - 5.6. Other relations: cause, purpose, temporal entailment 180
 - 5.7. Lexical configurations 182
 - Further reading 184
- 6. Syntagmatic structures in the lexicon 185
 - 6.1. What is a syntagmatic relation? 185
 - 6.2. Syntagmatic relations: role, attribution, and manner 186
 - 6.3. Impossible word combinations: why? 188
 - 6.3.1. Selectional restrictions and lexical solidarities 189
 - 6.3.2. Types of constraints on word combination 190
 - 6.3.2.1. Context fitting 194
 - 6.3.2.2. Redundancy 194
 - 6.4. Types of word combinations 195
 - 6.4.1. Free combinations 197
 - 6.4.2. Restricted combinations 198
 - 6.4.3. Collocations 199
 - 6.4.3.1. Salience vs. frequency 203
 - 6.4.4. Light verb constructions 204

6.4.5. Other constructions	207
6.4.6. Idiomatic expressions	208
6.5. Impact of combinatory phenomena on the lexicon	210
Further reading	215

Concluding observations	216
-------------------------	-----

References	217
------------	-----

Index	229
-------	-----